

PEACE STUDIES PAPERS

Working Paper 3

FOURTH SERIES

Transforming Attitudes Towards the Tools of Violence:
The Arms Exchange Programme in Mendoza,
Argentina

William H. Godnick

October 2001

UNIVERSITY OF BRADFORD

DEPARTMENT OF PEACE STUDIES

Previous Papers in this Series

Politics in the Next 50 Years: The Changing Nature of International Conflict

Paul Rogers, October 2000

Working Paper 1

Conflict Diamonds: Roles, Responsibilities and Responses

Michael Bourne, January 2000

Working Paper 2.1

Engendering the Field of Conflict Management: Why Gender Does Not Matter! Thoughts from a Theoretical Perspective

Cordula Reimann, January 2000

Working Paper 2.2

---

Staff and students are encouraged to contribute to this Working Paper Series. Anyone wishing to do so, please send your paper to David Francis: d.j.francis@bradford.ac.uk , or to Carol Hutson: c.r.hutson@bradford.ac.uk.

Transforming Attitudes Towards the Tools of Violence: The Arms Exchange Programme in Mendoza, Argentina

William H. Godnick

October 2001

Contents

Introduction: Background on Arms, Security and Violence in Argentina .....	1
The Arms Exchange Programme for Better Living Conditions .....	7
Programme Implementation .....	11
Evaluating the Arms Exchange Programme .....	15
Conclusion .....	18
Bibliography .....	20

---

About the author

William H. Godnick

William “Bill” Godnick (USA) is an extramural research student working with Dr Owen Greene. He is developing his PhD thesis on qualitative and quantitative methods for evaluating the effectiveness of civilian disarmament programmes using case studies from Argentina, Brazil and El Salvador. At present Bill is an advisor on small arms control for the United Nations Development Programme’s Emergency Response Division and El Salvador field office and a contributor to the Geneva-based research publication Small Arms Survey.